

LOCAL OILFIELD WORK NOW LOOKING BRISKER

SEVERAL NOW DOWN TO THE PRODUCING SANDS AND CORING

(By W. A. Knowles)

Orkney Oil Ltd. is now down 2195 feet, and coring formation which appears to be highly satisfactory. Important results should be evidenced within the next hundred feet and should be interpreted during the present week. If this hole prove productive, and indications are that it will, prospects are excellent for a large capacity, deep-test well to be put down by this concern which has carried through its program with enthusiasm in spite of the many obstacles met with in the earlier stages.

Fabyan Peto Coring
Fabyan Petroleum is now coring at 1987 feet. Recent corings brought up have been very encouraging and it would appear that important results may be picked up any day now. R. E. Williams who has been at the Coast on business for this concern is expected to return to the field today.

Bethwaite on Three Tours
Coring at 2212 feet, Bethwaite No. 2 well has shown important indications in several sections of the core barrel and it is expected that within the next 30 or 40 feet an oil-bearing sand, at least as good as that being produced from at B.P. No. 3B, Edmonton-Wainwright and Sasko-Wainwright, should be intercepted. The next few days will place the tools in this strata, with the equipment working night and day.

Watching for "Shell" Co.
Rumor still persist that the "Shell" will operate in this field this summer and that certain examinations made in the Buffalo Park recently, adjacent to one of the Park residents, were in connection with early enterprise by this concern. No equipment has yet been placed in the field though. Vancouver, Edmonton and Calgary oil news channels strongly persist in the authenticity of the report of early activity.

Beaumont Soon on Pump
D. W. Beaumont of Beaumont Oil Ltd. is expected back to the field any day now in connection with the resumption of work on this concern's No. 2 location, which is down 686 feet, with equipment and hole capacity for a deep test on the North side of the Battle River near Fabyan. It is their intention to place their No. 1 well, which is an estimated 50 barrel producer on the pump.

Palmer Likely to Drill
Mr. A. B. Palmer, of Vancouver, a holder of large acreage in this and the Ribstone field is making the Wainwright Hotel his headquarters while looking over various oil activities in this locality also the Ribstone and Meridian locations. It is likely that this visit precedes actual activity under a derrick which was erected last summer on location 14-18-4-2 w4 in the Ribstone area.

London-Ribstone Petroleum are now coring around 5050 feet on their well designated by previous structural test work.

Peninsular Pumping
Peninsular Petroleum have not received activity yet on their well which is down 250 feet and where good prospects rendered work by their standard equipment very difficult. It is understood that a rotary equipment for placement on this site is being seriously considered.

This concern is pumping their Wainwright No. 4 property and anticipate early action on other Wainwright locations towards renewing their capacity.

Willingdon Line Is Now Opened

EDMONTON—Marking the passing of another milestone in the history of the Canadian Pacific Railway in western Canada, the recently constructed branch line from Willingdon to Vegreville, Alta., a distance of about twenty-five miles, was declared open with the arrival of the first official passenger train at the new Vegreville station. Regular train service on this extension south from Willingdon, connecting up with Edmonton, will commence within a week.

The special train of six coaches, led by the Strathcona station, Edmonton, at 4 p. m. and arrived at Vegreville at 7 p. m. after a 10 minute stop at Willingdon to refuel the engines and pick up representatives of that town who made the trip over the new line to join in the official opening ceremonies.

WAINWRIGHT THESPIANS DELIGHT VIKING AUDIENCE

The Wainwright dramatic club were greeted with a full house on Wednesday evening when they presented the mystery play "Cat of Nine Tails" in the Community hall at Willingdon. There is no doubt it was possibly the best amateur theatricals ever presented there, and the large audience were not slow to voice their appreciation of the presentation by a company which enjoys a high reputation. All the parts were an unusual talk on and indeed it was hard at times to realize that it was not a professional troupe which was occupying the boards. Quite a large number of Wainwright folk were there for both the play and the dance which followed. At the close the players were entertained by the Troupe club there under whose auspices the affair was staged.

WHEAT POOL SAFE MOTHERWELL SAYS MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE IS CONFIDENT SURPLUS STOCKS WILL BE SOLD

WASHINGTON D. C. — Surplus wheat in Canada probably will be disposed of by the end of July and the wheat carried over will be a very high grade. These are the opinions expressed here by Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Canada's minister of agriculture.

Speaking of the wheat pool, the minister said: "How can they lose? The pool was a tremendous stride forward from the viewpoint of the average contract signer for he felt through it, he would secure the last cent the market would justify and that was all he wanted."

"The wheat growers will stand four-square and solidly behind the pool," Mr. Motherwell was emphatic. "And not only will the western farmers stand behind the wheat pool, but farmers as a whole will extend and adopt the principle of co-operation in marketing of all surplus products throughout the whole of Canada."

During his visit here the minister had a lengthy conference with Alexander Legge, chairman of the federal farm board, which is developing co-operative farm marketing agencies throughout the United States.

NO GREAT RESERVE MOISTURE IN SASK.

According to telegraphic reports received by the statistics branch of the Saskatchewan department of agriculture the weather has been broken by showers, and in some cases snow, which caused some interruption of seeding operations during the last ten days, and particularly during the latter part of last week. There has, however, not been sufficient moisture to create any appreciable reserve, and frequent rains after seeding will be required.

SCHOOL BD. MEMBERS VISIT UTILITY BOARD

GOING INTO POSSIBILITIES OF NEW EIGHT-ROOM PUBLIC SCHOOL HERE

The members of the Wainwright school board journeyed to Edmonton on Tuesday last to keep an appointment with the Utilities board of the province, for the purpose of discussing the possibilities of erecting a new permanent additional eight-room public school in Wainwright. We are informed that after a severe grilling of questions as to their present accommodation and financial condition, the Board were instructed, to procure definite plans and specifications to present to the Utilities board, and these will then receive every possible consideration. The members of the Board are now busy searching for plans and looking over school sites in other towns with a view of getting 100 p.c. value for any money which may be spent on the project, and so as to have the matter in such shape as can be dealt with by the authorities in Edmonton.

Mr. Dave Gardiner has now purchased the former Tompkins farm, and will be moving his family to that location shortly.

Quite a number of new lattice fences are being built by townsfolk these days, and these are greatly to the appearance of the home as well as making support for decorative vine.

the general committee, and later it was decided that the sub-committees be struck as follows:—Grounds, sports, music and entertainment, and parade.

In the appointment of chairman to these several committees, the following gentlemen were elected, each having the power required to add names to bring his committee up to working strength.

Grounds—Mr. W. Crowe
Sports—Mr. J. Alderman
Music & Entertainment—Mr. E. L. Cook

Parade—Mr. D. S. A. Kely
Quite a lot of business pertaining to the affair was discussed, and ways and means were thoroughly gone into and before adjourning it was decided that the general committee should meet each Monday afternoon at 4.30 p.m.

It was decided at the Monday meeting that the celebration will follow similar lines to last year's event, with nearly one thousand dollars of prize money hung up. The parade will be of the hitherto variety, and the whole day is shaping up to give lots of fun to everyone. Don't forget to arrive to stay in Wainwright Dominion Day and have a good time!

LOCAL NOTES

Get wagon oak, blacksmith coal, pure paint and dry lumber from the Atlas yard, best quality; reasonable prices—J. Welch, mgr.

Mr. W. McKay is improving his brick house on Sixth avenue by having the place stucco finished.

The young folk from town were cut in force on Friday night last to attend the dance in the Caron's hall at Pasquendale.

Quite a nice improvement has been effected in the appearance of the grounds at the power station by the planting of a large number of trees and shrubs around the newly painted building. In addition a lawn has been sown and it is really surprising what a small amount of expense is involved in such beautification—and it is truly worth-while, too!

Here lie the remains of Percy Sapp; He drove his car with a girl on his lap! and that is not the only reason for car accidents, there are 999 others. All of these can be insured against if you buy a policy from Joe Welch.

Of the 809,000 acres sown to fall wheat 21 per cent of 172,700 acres were winter-killed, leaving the area to be harvested for all Canada 636,300 acres.

IN MEMORIAM

In ever loving memory of my dear husband, Everett Burr Lodge, who passed away May 21st, 1929.
Gone is the voice I loved so dear, Silent the face I loved to hear; Too far away for sight or speech But not too far for thought to reach Sweet to remember who once was here And who, though absent, is just as dear Ever remembered by Wife and Son

MR. BUSINESS MAN! You are reminded that the monthly luncheon of the Board of Trade will be held at noon TODAY (Wednesday) and everyone interested is expected to be present. There are several items of business to come before the Board and a full attendance is hoped for.

By Order

Conservative estimates were that at least 20,000 citizens turned out to form a solid living wall along the route of the parade which escorted the city's idols from the civic banquet in the Macdonald hotel to the parliament buildings where the presentations were made to the airman, the Grads and Percy Page, coach, by Lieutenant-Governor Dr. Right, while the huge crowd yelled a continuous ovation.

Through donations, funds were raised to present each of the Grads with a case containing a 50 piece set of silverware and a wardrobe travelling bag. Coach Percy Page was presented with a combination radio, while "Punch" Dickens was given an engraved wrist watch, and "Wop" May was presented with a magnificent clock.

While returning home from town last Saturday night after the rain Mr. Wilfred LaFrance's car skidded on the grade near Baxter lake and turned over. ## LOCAL NOTES

The several grades of children who will be competing in the football on Friday gave an evening's entertainment on Monday in the I.O.O.F. hall before a crowded audience of parents and friends, and without letting the cat out of the bag we can safely say that any kiddies who excel these offerings for the adjudicators will surely deserve the trophies and medals. The individual work as well as the action songs and playlets would in many instances put to shame the efforts of adult persons. The teachers and trainers are all to be complimented.

Mr. and Mrs. Washburn and family motored to Lloydminster on Sunday last for a trip.

Mr. G. Cook, of the Meridian well was a visitor to town for a few days last week.

Messrs J. Telford and W. Clark, with their good ladies made an auto trip to Vermilion and Inlay on Sunday while the Editor and family visited friends at Chauvin by the same method. Sunday was sure a splendid day for road travel and all who could took advantage of it.

Conservative estimates were that at least 20,000 citizens turned out to form a solid living wall along the route of the parade which escorted the city's idols from the civic banquet in the Macdonald hotel to the parliament buildings where the presentations were made to the airman, the Grads and Percy Page, coach, by Lieutenant-Governor Dr. Right, while the huge crowd yelled a continuous ovation.

FEDERAL VOTING THIS SUMMER

PREMIER DECLARES ELECTION SHOULD BE HELD AT EARLIEST OPPORTUNITY

OTTAWA—In some brief preliminary observations which he made on the budget after its delivery last Thursday, Mr. Bennett expressed the view that a general election should precede the economic conference in September. While, in his elaborate speech yesterday, the Conservative leader did not return to the point with any emphasis, the Prime Minister has taken up the challenge and, so, there is to be a general election. In this there is no surprise. It conforms repeated broadcasts since the House opened.

The announcement was more deliberate than dramatic, and it came from the Prime Minister when he spoke for a few minutes, following Mr. Bennett's voluminous speech of over two hours. In so many words, Mr. King said that the issue had been raised, and that under all the circumstances it was better to appeal to the electorate.

Mr. Arthur Smith is now driving his new Buick car.

A new assistant in the person of Mr. J. Armstrong is now employed at the Montgomery store.

Mr. A. Stuart of the depot staff has now been transferred to Edmonton to work in future.

Everything Has Its Price

I've often wished that I could have stayed dumb. When I said that to Will once, he had to be funny of course, and say that he didn't think I'd have noticed much difference. But he was just joking; he doesn't really think I'm stupid. People who are born stupid and stay that way, thought, certainly have an easy time of it. I don't know of another trait that makes life so simple.

Mother Horton, for instance, positively lives on mottos. Give her a cooky recipe that calls for corn syrup instead of sugar, and she's skeptical as the next one till she's tried it out herself. But she will look you right in the eye and tell you that kind hearts are more than coronets; though she's never seen any coronets and hasn't heard half as much about them as she has about corn syrup.

I used to be something like that myself. I took it for granted that the more the merrier, it's always darkest just before dawn, and a stitch in time saves nine and you can't keep a good man down. It was a great shock to me the first time I realized that you can't always rely on a motto. Some mottos are all right but there are others that, just as soon as you really try to rely, your might upon them, go down under you. And there doesn't seem to be able to tell anyway which kinds are which.

It was the Carstairs that set me really to wondering about this business of having children.

Helen was a Chicago girl that Bob Carstairs had married. Bob had lived in Montreal when he was a little boy, and when he came back to be manager of the power and light company's office we were all glad to see him again and crazy to get acquainted with his wife. When we heard that though they had been married six or eight years, they didn't have any children, we said of course, what a pity. I shall never forget the shock I got when I found the Carstairs pitted the rest of us.

It came out quite accidentally when Helen and I were talking about the Bartels. Helen had been very tactful; she was lovely to all babies, always said our twins should be in the movies, they were the cutest four-year-olds she'd ever seen in her life, and so on. But when I happened to mention one day that Betty Bartel was at just going to have a baby, Helen said, "Oh, isn't that too bad!"

I said, "Why on earth?"

"Oh, I don't know, said Helen vaguely. But, it seems a shame when they're getting along so well."

I'd always thought that it was when people were getting along well that they should have their babies. "If the Bartels don't have a baby now, when Harry's been made assistant of the department and Betty's uncle has died and left her three thousand dollars, I don't see when the proper time would ever come," I said. "They'd go on and on and probably never have any."

Helen didn't say anything; but she shrugged her shoulders in a way that was as good as saying, "Well, what of that?"

"They'd be missing the greatest thing in life," I said firmly. "That was one of those mottos, so to speak that was supposed to close discussion. But it didn't."

"I'm not so sure," said Helen. "Who is to know it is the greatest thing in life? People who haven't any children can't have seen it, and people who have children usually haven't seen anything else."

"People who haven't any children!" I said. "I'm lonely and unhappy in my old age."

"So are plenty of them who do," said Helen. "Look at Mrs. Wing. Mr. Butler and Mr. Long and old Grandpa Hecob. Talk about loneliness!"

Well I knew that was true. When Mrs. Wing's daughter married a missionary and went to India, which must have been fifteen years ago, Mrs. Wing just stopped living for anything but Mary's letters. And she always cried over them. Mrs. Butler can't talk about a thing in the world but her son in Peoria and her other son in Utah. And the first year that neither of them got back home for Christmas she nearly died of hurt and loneliness. Mrs. Long's daughter didn't turn out very well and I'm sure Mrs. Long couldn't be any madder or more bitter or alone in the world if she'd never had a child. And as for poor Mr. Holcomb, whose own grandson cheated him out of his business and put him in the Old Men's Home!

I had to admit that having children doesn't exactly guarantee a happy old age for you, so I hurried on to another motto.

"Children," I said, "keep you young and draw husband and wife together."

"Oh, do they? Look at Rosie Mortal. Do you think she looks young for her age?"

"She looks very young for a mother of four children."

"If I thought you said children kept you young," said Helen. "Then Rosie ought to look four times as young as though she only had one. And talk about drawing husband and wife together!"

Just look at her and Howard. Why six years ago when Bob and I came here for Bob's vacation, the Mertons were just married and they used to go down and help Howard in the office getting out the bills and so on. Then Howard was always knocking off a day and they'd go off together in their silver. And camping weekends and all such things. I thought I had never seen a couple that had so much fun together. Don't you remember how we used to call them the Mertons?

"Well, my soul, you can't expect a woman to keep house for a family and work in a dentist's office besides can you? Somehow I felt quite irritable about defending Howard and Rosie. And Howard has to make an awful lot more money now than he did then. He can't afford to knock off days. Besides it's not so easy to be away from home overnight when you've got four babies. It isn't that Howard and Rosie don't like each other just as well as ever; but they both got something to do now besides just being Siamese twins."

"That is exactly the point. I was making," said Helen, "about babies drawing husband and wife together."

She stopped short and began to get red and embarrassed and I know that it was just because she suddenly remembered I had her back as my own. She instantly began talking nervously and tactfully about how darling Jack and Jill were.

She was afraid she had hurt my feelings but she hadn't. She had set me to thinking though. And to not letting things.

The Carstairs had the most artistic house in town—everybody said so—and a maid they had brought from Chicago to take care of it. They had been abroad once, so they had lots of things you can't buy in this country. They had new books and thirty-five cent magazines round like nothing at all, and our foreman said winter and always a box of two-dollar pound candy.

I happened to know that Helen was thirty-two and I had to admit that she looked much younger than Rosie who was only twenty-six. And though she wasn't really as pretty as Dulcie she looked prettier. This was because she always had just "right o' shies and toos" such good care of herself. She never considered a thing in buying—dress except that it was smart and extremely becoming. She wore custom stockings which made her ankles look very slim, even in the morning. She had four different shades of powder, and had her hair waved regularly at Ye New Beauty Shoppe, that it always looked better than mine, which is naturally curly.

I don't know how the other girls would sit down beside the front bedroom window with Jill in my lap and Jack, and we'd watch for Daddy. Sometimes when I would see Will, tall and big in his winter overcoat, swinging around the corner under the street light, look up at our window and wave to the children, I would feel so happy that I'd feel a sudden ache, way up in back of my throat.

Oh, I wasn't sorry of course that we had the twins. But, nevertheless, the Carstairs set me thinking. Thinking of the price we paid for having them.

Helen could never get it into her head that I couldn't pick up and after my usual work was done, that I could leave the house of an afternoon, unless I took the children with me, or else planned ahead to have somebody to leave them with. Sometimes she'd joke about it, had the twins with "Hello there old Bill and Chain, but mostly she was tactful about it.

If there's anything in the world that's poison to me, it's to know that somebody's being tactful to me. Helen had a way of smoothing some things over and pretending not to notice others that got me perfectly wild. She'd start to suggest our doing something and turn it off hastily into some gushing compliment about Jack and Jill. I'd have thought maybe I was usually sensitive about it, but even Will noticed it. When Will notices that it must be pretty bad.

If it hadn't been for Helen's tact I don't imagine either Will or I would have thought of entering the country club tournament.

We were over to the Carstairs one evening and they were talking about it. "I think Bob and I will enter the 'Married Doubles,' Helen said. The merchants of the three towns are putting up wonderful prizes. The first is a pair of twin beds that I'd adore for our guest room."

Will and I glanced at each other. All we had in our guest room was a double cot with a cretonne cover.

"When is this tournament?" Will asked. He had joined the country club for business reasons; but we all had never used it ourselves. The tournament, it seemed, was six weeks off. I knew just what Will was thinking. Though we aren't such wonderful golfers, we might have a chance in the Married Doubles, because we're fairly even. In most of the couples we know one or the other was poor enough to be a handicap.

The Carstairs went on talking about the tournament and Will and I said nothing in words, but we kept up a kind of silent conversation with glances. And pretty soon Will said right out:

"If we could get in some practise every day for six weeks—of course we're rusty as the dickens—"

Before I had a chance to say anything Helen rushed into the breach.

"Oh, there wouldn't be any use entering unless you got in good form first," she said. "And that would take a lot of practise. I don't imagine the tournament'll be worth the bother."

"Oh, I don't know about that; I think it'll be pretty good," said Bob who, being a man, was to be reminded to be tactful. His wife's glance was enough to remind anybody.

"Jill did the cunningest thing this morning," she said brightly, changing the subject with a tactfulness that made me car-sick.

"Let's enter the tournament Will," I interrupted, her with a kind of reckless desperation. I didn't see how on earth we could manage; but I just felt I couldn't stand one bit more of patronizing pity. And Will must have felt the same, because he said promptly:

"All right, I'm on."

When we were alone at home, we were a bit appalled at what we'd decided, but neither of us wanted to back out.

"If we could park the kids from about five o'clock till seven or so," said Will. "I could duck out of the office an hour earlier and we could beat it right out to the links."

"Maybe Mother Horton'll take them for supper," I said. "It'll only be for six weeks."

Mother Horton had usually been willing to take the children at any time, but she and Father Horton had stayed out in California this summer. However when I explained the situation to Mother, she rose to the emergency like a good sport and said for us to drop Jack and Jill on our way out to the links and pick them up on our way back.

The Carstairs decided to practise at the same time, so that we could all go out together. The first Monday started off beautifully. Will rushed home from the office and got into his knicker. I had a cute new very light-weight sweater and skirt, and I thought we looked just as swell as Bob and Helen. And Will must have been a good sport and said for us to drop Jack and Jill on our way out to the links and pick them up on our way back.

Of Vital Importance to Everybody!

"It cuts the farmer of Manitoba twenty-five millions of dollars per annum for the privilege of growing weeds," says T. J. Harrison, Professor of Agronomy, Manitoba Agricultural College, Winnipeg. "The problem of weed control therefore, is of vital importance to everybody concerned with agriculture."

Imperial Oil Limited offers its free book "Weed Control" to every farmer interested in the suppression and ultimate extinction of noxious weeds.

This book has been prepared and is now being distributed with two objectives in mind. One is to impress on Canadians the extreme gravity of the weed situation. The other is to familiarize farmers with the methods used by those who have fought and conquered this greatest of land evils.

The most severe losses suffered by Canadian agriculture during the past twenty years have been caused by about twenty different varieties of malignant plants. These weeds have spread over Canadian farm lands—choking and destroying crops. So serious indeed had weed infection become in some sections that many farmers have been forced off their land.

Wherever weeds have been permitted to multiply and flourish, losses have been sustained. That is why it is so important to deal with them NOW. And that is why the Imperial Oil book "Weed Control" can be of great service to every farmer who intends this year to begin a definite, well-planned program of weed eradication.

The Honorable Duncan Marshall, former Minister of Agriculture for Alberta, is the compiler and editor of this interesting volume. Practical farmers, agricultural schools, experimental farms and weed authorities in every section have contributed to its pages. By filling out and mailing the attached coupon, you will receive your free copy of "Weed Control" without delay.

For Wainwright Merchants Only

Being one of a series of chats with Wainwright businessmen in which they are told how they can increase their volume of sales.

Making The Demand Equal The Supply

In olden days the merchant, who oftentimes was also a manufacturer, went from house to house peddling his wares. Then times changed, and methods changed, and the itinerant merchant disappeared.

In his place came the merchant of today—the merchant who is a purchasing agent for his community.

As a purchasing agent the merchant buys as he believes the people in his community will buy from him. Sometimes his sales are many, at other times they are few. Always, however, his supply is equal to the demand. But the demand, unhappily all too often falls very, very far below the supply. Which means poor business.

Take your own case. You have, let us say, enough of the goods you handle to supply a goodly number of the people in Wainwright who require these goods. Do they demand these goods in such great quantities as to make your supply inadequate?

You need the advertising aid of the manufacturers whose goods you stock—urge their salesmen to recommend your local home newspaper.

FUMIGATION

Not so many years ago, it was generally believed that whatever it was that caused the communicable diseases was blown around in the air. For this reason, when such diseases occurred, a great deal of attention was given to the air of the rooms which were occupied by persons suffering from communicable diseases. Rooms were treated by burning sulphur, by evaporating or spraying formaldehyde or other disinfectants. The idea behind such procedures was the need to sterilize the air.

We know now that malaria and yellow fever are not air-borne diseases. They are caused by the bite of certain types of mosquitoes which have previously fed on persons suffering from these diseases.

We also know that the germs causing the common communicable diseases are very quickly outside the human body. Their chance of tem-ary survival is fairly good if they are deposited in milk or other foods where they can remain moist. We do not include tuberculosis or measles for reasons, the discussion of which is not permitted by the space at our disposal.

We know that in the case of practically all the diseases, excluding those spread by water, milk and foods the communicable diseases are spread from person to person directly, and not through inanimate objects. The germs of disease are carried by the droplets expelled by coughing, spitting and loud talking. The spread of infection is accounted for by the taking in of these droplets by a second person.

Communicable diseases cannot be controlled by fumigation, by the sterilization of the air and of inanimate things. If a communicable disease occurs in a school room, the proper method of control is to attempt to find the individual responsible for the spread of the germs. The cause is always a person, not some school desk or blackboard. It is a waste of time and money to fumigate the room. It is money and time well spent to have the children examined in order to find the source of the infection.

During the course of a communicable disease, all body discharges should be carefully collected and disinfected, because these fresh discharges contain the germs in large numbers and so are dangerous. The patient is isolated to prevent others from coming in contact with his body discharges and secretions. If such care is taken, there is no danger. It is the care during the course of the disease, by such concurrent disinfection, that is important. When the patient recovers and the secretions of his body are free from germs, there is no danger either in him or his surroundings, and there is certainly no value in fumigation.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College St., Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

THE RETURN OF ADAM

In the current issue of "The Rotarian" there is a delightful article entitled "Adam comes back to the Garden" and it is illustrated with wonderful pictures. We call therefrom a few thoughts for our readers, thanking the writer, Elmer Peterson, for this courtesy.

"Adam has been sneaking back into the garden in recent years. When several weapons crunched over new trails into new country, the women brought geranium slips, seeds of petunias, hollyhocks and pansies. Transplanting beauty in the wilderness meant courage just as worthy of rifles, pikes and axes. While the men fought Indians, droughts, grasshoppers, the women started gardens. How little we have realized the power of the hollyhocks bordering on the path to the log cabin!

"When you enter the outskirts of a strange city, what do you see? Square miles of dreary railroad yards, tenements, weedy dump tracts, and sloughs of stagnant water. You turn your face away. With travail some cities are now appointing city planning commissions to bring belated relief, and are threatening and squirming out of the grip of materialistic ugliness. Back of all the struggle stands a little potted geranium, or a border of hollyhocks to a cabin door!

"Today it is being borne in upon the minds of business and professional men that ugliness is inefficient. Wherever there is beauty, there is a lift of spirit, and a physical and psychological efficiency that increases production. Dirt, smoke and filthy environments are wasteful much beyond reckoning. Beauty is no softer sentimentalism or maudlinism of long-haired effeminates, or starving in garrets. Beauty is hard-headed, virile, good business policy. A garden is part of the landscape.

"You own the land—I own the landscape," and there are certain civic implications in the garden game. Most of us need to have the idea that a garden was a series of flower beds planted in rows like vegetables, but now we work with grass plots, borders, masses of shrubs and the garden has become a work of art. It has a more or less permanent design and the working out of this design gives a man just as much a creative thrill as the painting of a canvas or the moulding of a piece of sculpture. The working of plant-life is such a marvel that the study of a single rose-leaf or petal under a powerful microscope, especially if aided by chemical reagents might provide material for a volume. Today the business man is realizing the importance of the home garden in the scheme of an evolving and a changing civilization. It is no longer the exclusive realm of the wife and mother. It is a broad and constantly expanding agency for the building of a male citizen's world. It is keyed to the modern world for it supplies most of the inspiration for the things that are needed to make the modern world beautiful and thereby more efficient.

"With all honour to the women, who were the pioneers of the garden, let us now celebrate the return of Adam."—Ed.

BENEATH THE FLAGS

At the annual Teachers Convention held in Calgary in April, there was an attractive booth where the flags of the world were on display. Forty-two nations of the civilized world were represented there, and the speaker, on asking the meaning, would be told that in each of these countries there was an active Red Cross Society and that the children were organized in the world-wide league of mercy, known as the Junior Red Cross.

On the table was displayed the fine portfolio with unique pictures written in foreign tongues, it came from the people of Boian Maree, Central Europe, in reply to one sent them by the Albertan district of the same name, where Boian Maree and their children are settling to friendship. The Red Cross in compassionate understanding stretches its arms everywhere, linking the children and people of the world together in a bond of common understanding and loving service. One goal—the honour of the sick finds interpretation in the old lands and the new. One aim—a finer citizenship—is the ideal before the schools of the world. One far-off event—the goodwill and peace of the nations of the earth—is the hope of every Junior Red Cross branch in every little white schoolhouse in Canada. Send to the Red Cross Headquarters, 407 Civic Block, Edmonton for a booklet entitled "Junior Red Cross," which will explain the idea behind this branch of Red Cross.

WEED CONTROL PROGRAMME
The Alberta Department of Agriculture has now completed its plans for the weed control programme of 1930.

Under the Field Crops Branch the Province has been divided into fifteen districts. In each of these districts a Field Supervisor will be stationed. His duties will be to co-operate with Weed Inspectors appointed by Municipal Councils, and in Local Improvement Districts, in general Weed Control work and the enforcement of the Noxious Weed Act. Farmers of the province are urged to avail themselves of the services of these men. Their office centres are being advertised in this issue.

TRAIN TELEPHONE NOW A FACT

The Canadian National Railways, which first made possible the reception of radio concerts on board a moving train, an invention which many first class railroads have since copied, have achieved another mechanical triumph by perfecting the first two-way system of telephone communication in the world with moving trains. The system has been put into public service by the company on "The International Limited," which covers the 334 miles separating Montreal and Toronto in 360 minutes, the fastest train in the world traversing a like distance.

The photograph shows Sir Henry Thornton, Chairman and President of the Canadian National Railways, inaugurating the telephone service from "The International Limited" while the train is travelling at 60 miles per hour. At the train switchboard is J. C. Burkholder, Chief Engineer of the Canadian National Telegraphs, who developed and perfected the train telephone system.

VICTORIA DAY

Deeper than just a desire for another holiday the behind general observance throughout the Dominion of Canada for the anniversary of the birth of Queen Victoria. This is not just another holiday, a meaningless observance.

Though Alexandria Victoria died more than a quarter of a century ago, her influence is still felt throughout the British Empire. She left an indelible mark upon the English character and created for herself an eternal place in the history of her country and empire.

As one of Britain's great queens her court was a model of correctness and propriety and under her patronage and influence literature and the other arts progressed, the empire enjoyed a period of unprecedented expansion and gained new political health.

Canadians do not need to be reminded of the "Mid-Victorian Age" Her reign brought the union of Upper and Lower Canada and later the confederation of all the provinces into the Dominion of Canada. Religious and political reforms were promulgated and Canada and the United States entered upon a new era of friendly relations that has continued to this day.

Eighty-two years Good Queen Victoria lived, but she lived not long enough.

CENTENARIAN
PUBLICATION

Canadian newspapermen will experience a feeling of regret over the announcement that the Acadia Record has ceased publication. This well known Halifax daily was founded 117 years ago and for many years was in the control of the Blackader family. It was unique among newspapers in that it maintained the style of old-time make-up adopted several decades ago. Modern methods of newspaper preparation were ignored.
It preserved its individuality but lost its news appeal to the reader and the younger and more enterprising contemporaries in Halifax profited by the amazing loyalty to a family tradition. In its closing issue the Recorder pointed out that its history is virtually the history of Nova Scotia, but no daily newspaper in these modern, bustling days can live on history. There must be a more vitalizing leaven. A newspaper like the individual must conform to modern conditions.

The suspension of publication has followed closely on the death of Mr.
C. C. Blackader.

HOUSE MAY CLOSE
END OF MONTH

OTTAWA HAS LITTLE INTEREST IN ALBERTA ELECTION - RETURN EXPECTED

OTTAWA - The order paper of the House, quite cleared of its private bills and divorce cases, following time occupied in discussion on the budget. Sometimes it was fairly lively with some cross-firing, but most of the time it was quiet, with very slim attendances.

Like all governments this one is in a hurry to get through and get its campaign on the outside under way.
Its operations are said to be non-the less advanced because they have not been heralded. The business to be put through, making allowances for what has to be dropped, is of sufficient volume and importance to keep the House for several weeks were the circumstances ordinary.

But it is hoped to conclude within three weeks and possibly in less time.

The Alberta provincial election in June is not attracting much attention here. It would arouse more interest if the government appealing to the country were either Liberal or Conservative. Mr. Brownlee is expecting to go back to office, dividing credit over the return of the natural resources, a domain of enormous potential value. His claims, besides having got them, and the government here claims credit for having given them, accompanied by such liberal terms as would have made reform impossible.

CHEESE, THE PROTEIN FOOD

(Sixth of a series of radio talks given over CNRO, by W. F. Stephen, Secretary, national dairy council of Canada, on the evening of Thursday, May 8th, 1930.)

In cheese the housewife has one of the simplest forms of protein food, easily digested, no waste, and always ready for use.

The discovery of cheese is legendary, and like the discovery of butter is attributed to the Arabs.

Long before the time of Christ, so tradition has it, an Arab herdman, after a day of hot travel, sat down in the cool shade to rest his parched throat and milk, which he carried in a skin bottle made from the stomach of a calf. When he opened the skin bottle and poured the liquid into the gourd cup which he carried, to his surprise a thin watery liquid came forth. It was pleasant to taste so he drank it. His curiosity being aroused he investigated and found his skin bottle contained something solid inside. He quickly cut it open and lo and behold a white mass of moist matter. Good tasting? Yes! So he ate it and as he went about his duties that afternoon, pondered over what had happened. That change in the milk had decided possibilities. It was good food—a little squeezing made it a solid mass and much easier to carry than milk. He related his experience and purposed trying it again and his tribe took up the idea.

Thus if tradition be credited, did the world learn to make one of the most widely used and popular foodstuffs ever added to the diet of mankind.

Cheese is more extensively used in European and Asiatic countries than on the American continent. The following countries have established statistic bureaus which keep tab on all economic matters, and from them we learn the per capita consumption of cheese per year is as follows: Swiss around 23 lbs.; Holland 13.5 lbs.; France 13.5 lbs.; Denmark 13.2 lbs.; Germany 9.5 lbs.; Scandinavia, 7 lbs.; United States 4.14 lbs; and Canada 3.54 lbs.

It would seem that there is a co-relation of cheese-eating and racial strength. The biggest cheese eaters the Swiss are a sturdy lot—they have ability to climb mountain scarpes, wrest a living from patches of soil among the rocks and hills of their native land and stand to the last man whenever they have figured in struggles for existence.

Next in line are the Dutch and the Danes—stout folk both of them, dan-ging mariners, skilful farmers and great fighters who have written their names large in history. Then come the French, the Germans and the British—all of them peoples who vigour and importance in history need no comment. It is said of the hardy English mariner that his mid-day meal is "cheese and bread" instead of the usual "bread and cheese" lunch.

Some people may say that these people live in temperate or cool climates, and that fondness for cheese might run with the climate. Again, let us see. No one associates the Arab with anything but his hot desert and but no one will ever dispute the hardi-hood and historical importance of these pastoral tribes—and cheese is a favorite article of diet with Arabs.

India affords us an instructive case in point. In this crowded land of many creeds and races, the people pre-eminently able to take care of themselves are those in the northwest. Rajputs, Sikhs, and the like. Cheese and other dairy products are favourite articles of food with them. Elsewhere in India are teeming millions who have always seemed destined to exploitation at the hands of the stronger races; and these people have made little use of cheese and dairy products.

We come now to the question of greatest interest to us as a people: what is the position of Canadians in this matter? The figures already given on the per capita consumption of cheese show that we in Canada are the lightest cheese eaters of any question. As we might expect, the people coming to Canada brought their cheese-making arts with them, and in the older settled parts of Eastern Canada, particularly in Ontario and Quebec, cheese-making became noted for its large exports of fine cheese.

Notwithstanding our large make of cheese, Canadians have not become great cheese eaters. Perhaps our food habits have not developed along right lines, although food tastes are guided largely by the availability of foods.

Now that cheese in various forms is available to almost every family in Canada we are making it part of our business to bring Canadian housewives the excellent qualities of cheese as a food. It contains muscle-building material—protein—of a quality particularly suited to the best growth of children as well as adult maintenance. Its mineral elements, calcium and phosphorus, for the building of bones and teeth are especially valuable. Cheese contains vitamins so much needed by growing children or hard workers. Cheese, then, is a superior food. Because it is concerning its food value per unit of weight is very high. The kind of protein found in cheese is so valuable that if it were the only source of protein in a diet, it would, given in sufficient quantity, be adequate, not only to maintain life, but to support normal growth.

Cheese is in the low-cost diet. Suppose we examine the matter from the point of view of the typical Canadian family of modest income. That family probably is accustomed to think of cheese as a relish, a tidbit and to rely on other foods for most essential in the diet. To consider cheese as a rich source of both protein and fat as well as vitamins and minerals is uncommon. This family does not realize that cheese is not only an excellent food, but a splendid "buy" for the money.

Cheese is the most highly concentrated source of food; quality protein known, from 20% to more than 90% of its total weight being cheese forming foods—yet pound for pound it is among the cheapest protein foods that can be bought. In addition it is also an excellent source of calcium, phosphorus and vitamin A.

From 90% to 99% of the total weight of cheese is digested—there is practically no waste—yet it costs no more than good protein food of which a quarter to a half by weight is of little nutritive value to the body.

Staple kinds of cured cheese keep indefinitely—there is no spoilage waste—and they can be served in a score of appetizing ways, thus placing these kinds of cheese among the handiest and most economical foods with which a family could be valuable.
In closing let me mention just a few of the ways cheese may be used: Toasted cheese sandwich, cheese fondué, Welsh rarebit cheese omelet, rice and peas with cheese, cottage or cream cheese salad. In fact all these properly prepared goes well with all foods. Cheese is particularly a hot weather food.

We thank CNRO for the privilege of putting over this talk, and we hope that those who have heard found it of more interest.

We say in closing, use more cheese —the protein food—thank you.

GOOD NIGHT

DON'T STOP MY PAPER

Don't stop my paper, printer.
Don't strike my name off yet You know the times are stringent, And the dollars hard to get.
But I'll work a little harder, That's what I mean to do And get the dimes together And send them off to you.
I can't afford to drop it,
I find it would not pay.
To do without your paper.
However others may,
I would not ask my neighbors To give me theirs on loan.
They don't just say, "be mean it."
"Why don't you keep your own?"
You can't tell how I miss it, If it, by any fate Should happen not to reach us.
Or come a little late.
Then all in a hubbub
And things go all awry.
We cannot do without it.
You know the reason why.
The young folks want the stories And I am anxious too.
At first I glance it over,
And then to read it through.
I cannot do without it.

It is no use to try.
For other people take it.
And printer, so must I.
Exchange.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

R. V. LAMON, editor of the Oshawa (Ovew) register, says:

"That the easiest way to belittle yourself in the eyes of a stranger is to make disparaging remarks about your home town. If you tell a stranger "this is a little town and a hundred years behind the times" that stranger is apt to glance out of his eyes and make a mental, if not subtle comment that "judging from the sample before him, it sure is."
For a town is just what you are.
There is no use in trying to highbrow your way through and regard yourself as superior in your community, for you are not. If you have lived there long enough to claim citizenship.

Your town is made up of a lot of "ours" and you are just a fair sample of it. If you don't like your town move out of it and make room for some one who does like it. But as one as you are a citizen of it and a part of it, defend it to the best of your good opinion of others. Don't defame it and don't bring down the contempt of others on yourself by such an attitude toward the town where you reside. The stranger may have a lurking suspicion that sometime he might want to move to a town like yours, but when he hears this sort of comment coming from you he is apt to change his mind, for he does not want to associate with a town filled with people like you.

A town, like a stream of water, can rise no higher than its source, and you are the "source" for your town and the many other "yours" just like you.

CHEMICAL TO PROTECT TREES

To kill weeds in seedling beds of evergreen trees at the Northern Rocky Mountain forest-experiment station at Missoula, Mont., a zinc sulphate solution has been used effectively says Popular Mechanics Magazine. It poisons the weeds at the root but does not injure the sprouting trees, the tests have shown and besides saving much time, the method eliminates the damage usually suffered by small trees in weeding by hand. One and one-eighth ounces of zinc sulphate dissolved in a quart of water are applied to every four square feet of seeded soil.

Getting Ready for Shriners

Between 30,000 and 40,000 members of the Ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine will meet in Toronto next June under the leadership of Eaten A. Fletcher (inset), incoming Imperial Potentate of the Order. Hotels of the city, including the Royal York with its 1154 rooms will be insufficient to meet the demand, and the Canadian Pacific Railway is building a city of sleeping cars to accommodate some 5,000 of the Shriners. "Pex City", as it will be called, will cover 21 acres of land and construction data given out show the tremendous scope of the labors. There will be required 115,000 feet board measure in 30 sets of switch tie weighing 210 tons; 12,900 track ties weighing 800 tons; 30 switches weighing 86 tons; 11 1/2 miles of 85-lb. rail weighing 760 tons; 35,000 tie plates weighing 150 tons; 60 tons of rail fastenings; 30 tons of track spikes; 6 tons of track bolts; 18,000 cubic yards of ballasting for tracks; and 9,000 cubic yards of material for 2 1/2 miles of platform with a breadth of 14 feet. The city will be fitted with modern conveniences and a building 220 by 20 feet wide will accommodate 100 cold and hot showers. Lighting will require 15,000 watts, enough to supply 14 miles of city residential street lighting power. This electrical work will call for 35 miles of wire strung on 200 poles. Photo shows site of Pex City.

Putting electric wiring through conduit installed in buildings, is accomplished with the aid of a cable grip used successfully and saving some 15,000 feet of wire in a large New York skyscraper.

The committee at large felt that inasmuch as there were a number of voters who wanted opposition placed in the field against the present member a convention should be called in Wainwright at 2 p.m., Monday May 20th, 1930.

When one listens to the farmer tell of the lack of any noticeable Provincial work being done in this district to help the farmer, it is no wonder that the farmers who elected the present member at the last election voice their disapproval of his representation. They want a farmer who lives in this district and knows its needs to go to the Legislature; one who will voice their wants, receive Government action and come home to his district and see that the improvements are properly applied in the general upbuilding of the constituency.

Attend this convention, you Liberal-minded farmers. Tell this convention what YOU would like in the way of improved representation, and help us select a farmer to put in the field to represent Wainwright as we should be represented. This convention is for the benefit of the farmers.
It's a farmers' convention for the purpose of selecting a farmer to go to Edmonton to get something done for this district. What helps the farmer helps the townsmen. Let's get together and put this over for the farmers by the farmers and send a farmer to Edmonton who will help the farmer.

We are told that at the U.F.A. convention held Saturday last instead of the hundred odd delegates from all parts of the constituency who attended in previous years, only 38 delegates voted Saturday at the noon session which were decided in favor of Mr. Russell Love, the present member. Not by a goodly number did Mr.
Love receive the nomination. Many members of the U.F.A. were that day looking for another man to oppose the present member. But with an organization that has functioned for the last few years behind him, Mr.
Love had control of the convention and all the political tactics of the organization were brought into play to "put over" the present member.
The organization was successful. Mr.
Love is to be their candidate.

But we wonder if the men and women who spend their years on the farms in the Wainwright district are satisfied to know that they are to send back for another four years a man upon whom they have depended during the last four years?

(Can they be satisfied with Mr.
Love's explanations of the increase of the capital debt from $57,000.00 to $101,000.00 with so little that that increase spent in their district?

(Can the Wainwright farm folks be satisfied with the knowledge that $24,000.00 of that debt was for road improvement, when so little has been spent on roads in your district?

(Can the farmers be satisfied with the figures expended on account of public buildings, when this district is without an agricultural school or any other provincial building to serve the district?

Wainwright farmers believe in capital debt increase when it proportionately benefits the whole of the province but are the Wainwright voters to be satisfied with an increase of $50,000.00 while they sit back without enjoying any improvements, yet pay interest on the increased debt through proportionate taxation?

Give us roads and road improvements; give us an agricultural school or some provincial institution for public training; support better hospital facilities, and Wainwright will give the Government its support.

C. N.R. INAUGURATE FAST TRAIN SERVICE BETWEEN TORONTO AND VANCOUVER

WINNIPEG—A fast new train service between Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver will be inaugurated by the Canadian National Railways when the Confederation goes into service westbound from Winnipeg to Vancouver on May 18. The first train eastbound from Vancouver will leave that city on May 20.

Westbound between Winnipeg and Vancouver the Confederation will operate via Regina, Saskatoon and Edmonton, will be two hours and a half faster than the schedule on which it operated last year and there will be a further saving of one hour in the time between Toronto and Winnipeg on a total saving of three and one half hours in the complete journey.

Eastbound from Vancouver there will be a saving of two hours and forty five minutes between Vancouver and Winnipeg and a saving of forty minutes between Winnipeg and Toronto.

In leaving Toronto the westbound Confederation makes a connection with the Montreal International Limited from Montreal. This latter train leaves Montreal at 3 p.m., daily and makes the trip to Toronto in six hours and is the fastest train in the world over the same distance. By using it and the Confederation a saving of 13 hours can be made in the time between Montreal and Vancouver as compared with any existing service over the Canadian National Railways between those two ports.

The schedule of the Confederation for the train to leave Toronto at 9:30 p.m., daily with an arrival at Winnipeg at 8:15 the second morning. It leaves Winnipeg at 8:45 a.m., Regina at 5:50 p.m., Saskatoon at 10:50 p.m., Edmonton at 8:30 a.m., Jasper at 3:10 p.m., and arrives at Vancouver at 11:00 a.m.

Eastbound the time of departure from Vancouver is 1:35 p.m., Jasper 9:50 a.m., Edmonton, 5:05 p.m., Saskatoon, 2:00 a.m., Regina 6:55 a.m. and the arrival time at Winnipeg is 5:28 p.m. daily. It leaves Winnipeg at 6:20 p.m. and arrives at Toronto at 7:20 a.m., the second morning.

EVERGREENS FOR THE PRAIRIE HOME

(Experimental Farms Note)
"Evergreens for the home" should be the slogan of every householder who has sufficient land to grow trees or shrubs. Distinction and permanent beauty are given to the home by their presence.

Generally speaking, prairie homes lack trees. The majority of trees found are deciduous. Where evergreens appear on home grounds their beauty is always noticeable. This is particularly true in fall, winter and early spring.

Why is there a lack of evergreens?
Evergreens are slow growers, they are not easy to plant, they are not readily grown from cuttings and are difficult to grow from seed. Of late years, many persons have obtained the impression that evergreen trees
Experimental Station, Scott, it has been found that they grow slowly for the first few years but, when well established they soon rival the annual growth made by deciduous trees.
For example: the native white spruce in 18 years has practically equalled the height made by Russian Poplar in 16 years, and has taken a great deal less moisture to do it and was never broken by strong winds.

Evergreens, because of the facts already stated, have a variety of uses.
As individual trees they soon produce fine specimens. As clumps of varying numbers they add distinction and solid beauty to the home surroundings. As a windbreak for the garden they are easy on moisture and unexcelled for wind protection. As hedges for all the year they can be moulded to suit individual taste.

Years of experience have shown that evergreens can be grown under a variety of dry conditions and therefore should be used more freely to decorate our prairie homes.

is a natural question. Evergreens, some years ago, were not easy to obtain. Furthermore, they cannot be readily grown from cuttings and are
years, many persons have obtained
the impression that evergreen trees
Experimental Station, Scott, it has been found that they grow slowly
for the first few years but, when well established they soon rival the annual growth made by deciduous trees.
For example: the native white spruce
in 18 years has practically equalled
the height made by Russian Poplar
in 16 years, and has taken a great deal less moisture to do it and was

LAWNS

(Experimental Farms Note)

The lawn is the outside carpet of the home. It is a feature deserving thought and effort. It is to be a permanent part of the landscape, and a growing correspondence on the subject reveals the timeliness of some comments.

At the Dominion Experimental Station at Morden, a number of lawn mixtures have been sown. None of these have been nearly as satisfactory as those sown from home-mixed seed. Some of the trade mixtures have been decidedly unsatisfactory.
The best seed is generally the cheapest in the end. Most of the prairie lawn is of limestone formation. Kentucky Blue grass is admirably suited to such. Canadian Blue grass is considered somewhat more drought-resistant. Both grasses are slow starters but good finishers. They wear well and compete successfully with others in the mixture. Red Top is a ready starter and gives early protection to the Blue grasses, and happily, is later overcome by them.

White Butch grass thrives in moist places, forms a dense mat, and a sprinkling may well be added.

A suggested prairie lawn mixture is 4 parts Kentucky Blue, 1 part Canadian Blue, in May, preferably just before a rain, on well prepared, level, packed soil in which has been incorporated well-decayed barnyard manure. Thin broadcast also about three per cent by weight of White Butch clover. This is sown separately because of its heavier nature. The different plants have various depths of rooting and a mixture is an aid to establishing readily a good sward.
A slight slope of the lawn surface away from the house to carry off surplus water is desirable.

Rate of seeding is a vital point.
To 1000 square feet spread 2 1/2 pounds of grass, or a quart of grass seed for each 200 square of lawn.
After seeding, roll well. When the grass is up for two weeks, roll it.
Clip it high when the grass is three inches tall. Roll well each spring to keep level. When watering, soak it generously. Sprinkling the lawn is of trifling, if any, benefit.

Seed may be sown any time if watering facilities are available. Other wise in May when the soil has warmed up and before hot weather prevails to favourable time. Some shading with brush at the time of sowing may prove helpful.

A vast marine museum, costing from $5,000,000 and covering a 1000 acre lake, is planned in Virginia. The museum would contain reproductions of every type of vessel from the earliest days of the crude dug-out canoe, the ancient galley to the modern

The Rockies Are Calling You

The combination of the extremes of natural and sophisticated at Banff Springs Hotel and Chateau Lake Louise, which open May 15 and June 1, respectively, until September 30, is perhaps the secret of their charm. Located in the heart of the finest scenery of the continent—mountain, lake and forest—each offers to the visitor everything that the most ritzy hotel in the most cosmopolitan cities of the world can furnish. You may cut dancing to look through huge windows at slices of billion-dollar scenery or you may attire yourself to please yourself and go out for days on horseback into territory virtually untouched by the white man and all within a few miles of either hotel. You may live plainly but well on food packed into the wilds by horse or you may dine on the finest French cuisine in the world on the earth. You may be strictly formal or you may wander around in plus fours—everything goes, whether you are admiring the moonlight on snow-crowned peaks or listening at your ease to a cosmopolitan dance orchestra playing the latest blue. Anyone visiting either of these hotels has laid in a memory that will last a lifetime. Exposed shows, left, view from Chateau Lake Louise;

What Shall We Name The Baby?

A SYMPOSIUM BY INTERESTING PEOPLE OF TODAY CONDUCTED BY WILLIAM A. LEWIN

To select a suitable name for each new baby that comes into the world is indeed an absorbing problem. Nearly 2,000,000 new babies were born last year. And yet there are less than 1,000 names to choose from. Parents search telephone directories for suggestions. Shall we create some interesting new names?

No. 10—CHILDER HASSAM

ARTIST

I should name baby babies, if I had. I don't know if I could get along with them, first, Maude; second, Kattiven with more than four and I won't third, Bonnie; fourth, Virginia. Mother about boy babies.

CANADIAN'S IDEA COSTS

MOTORISTS MANY BILLIONS.

(Special To The Star)
OTTAWA—A bright idea which annually costs motorists billions of dollars, but which has made possible the construction of hundreds of thousands of miles of improved highways is generally attributed to a young Canadian. It is the gallonage tax on gasoline.

It is pretty close to fifteen years ago that Mr Cecil Lamont, now secretary of the Alberta Elevator Company at Calgary but then a reporter on a Winnipeg paper, strolled into the office of the Provincial treasurer of Manitoba.

Revenues were away under requirements and the treasurer was bemoaning the fact that no adequate method of painless extraction of more taxes was in sight.

"Why not put a tax on gasoline?" queried Lamont. "Why not?" rejoined the Minister and it was done.

Last year Canadian motorists paid close to thirty millions as a result of the suggestion.

A COLUMN OF WIT &amp; HUMOR

Martin Beck, the theatrical producer, was engaging one day a pretty actress.

"You got looks," he said, "and that's very important. Let me tell you a story."

"A minister and two lovely choir girls were on their way home from church one Sunday morning and they stopped awhile beside the river. They stood there talking about how clear the water was and how nicely the clouds and the clouds were reflected in it and so on, and just then a chap with a fishing rod came along.

"Any sport?" says he, for he thought they were fishing.

"My friend," says the minister in a reproachful hurt way, "I am a fisher of men."

The chap looked at the two girls. "Well, reverend," he said, "you're sure usin' the right bait."

Little Ethel: "Mother, are you the nearest relative I have got?"
Her Mother: "Yes, dear; and your father is the closest."

It was a touch and go in the breach of promise case and the defendant's barrister knew that he was "up against it."

While cross-examining the mother of the plaintiff, a very clever woman who was completely worsted in the encounter of wits.

At the close however, he turned to the jury and exclaimed:

"You saw gentlemen, that even I was but a child in her hand. What must the client have been?"

The band that ought to be rocking the world is swinging a golf club or playing bridge these days.

"Women" says Mr. Alfred E. Smith are just as much interested in government as men are and just as intelligent. Just about, which, if you ask us, is praise so faint as to be inaudible.—New York was making his farewell speech after a strenuous year of office. "Ladies and gentlemen," he began, "tonight I finish my year of mayorality. Tomorrow I resume my normal life."

Woman customer, (after clerk had pulled down all but one of the blankets on the shelves)—"I don't really want to buy a blanket today. I was only looking for a friend."

Clerk—"Well, madam, if you think your friend is hiding under the other one I will gladly take it down for you."

Prince of Wales to Launch Empress of Britain

A royal compliment to Canada as much as to the Canadian Pacific, was the opinion of E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway and chairman of the Canadian Pacific Steamships, Ltd., when announcing that His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales had consented to act as sponsor of the new giant liner of the Canadian Pacific fleet, the "Empress of Britain."

"We are greatly gratified," said Mr. Beatty, "to time to go up to the Clyde to sponsor our new ship. The Prince of Wales is one of the busiest men in Europe, and I take it that he has been led to do so out of his love for this country and his keen interest in all things Canadian."

The "Empress of Britain" will be the largest ship built in Great Britain since 1914.

The ceremonial launching, at which the Prince of Wales will be the central figure, will take place at the Clyde-side yards of John Brown & Company, the builders, on June 11, which, incidentally will be the first anniversary of the opening of largest hotel in the British Empire, the Royal York, Toronto, by the Governor-General of Canada.

The "Empress of Britain", besides being the greatest liner entering a Canadian port, will be the most palatial and up-to-date vessel afloat and, with her speed, will make possible a transatlantic crossing of five days or less between Canada and Great Britain, and will greatly shorten the journey between Europe and Canada and the Middle and Western States. The mammoth liner will be in service next summer, making regular voyages between Southampton, Cherbourg and Quebec.

Everything Has Its Price

by eighteen strokes. I couldn't help gloating over Helen's surprise. She had just taken it for granted that we would be dubs. She was not half so picky as we stroiled back to the club-house.

There was just one unfortunate trifle: Bob and Helen had taken it for granted that we'd stay and have supper at the club afterward, and of course we couldn't. We were keeping the twins up past their bed-time as it was. As we'd come in the Carstairs roadster, they had to come home too. They were very nice about it and didn't make a bit of difference. It really didn't amount to anything but a mere trifling, it was a little bothering. And, as Will said after we got home, if we were going to start getting meals at club prices we might as well buy the twin beds outright.

By the end of the first week, I could see that we'd decided to be in the tournament, and that we'd taken on something. For one thing, our pleasure in beating the Carstairs didn't last long. Our second afternoon, we happened to see the Bartletts playing. My soul, they were so much better than any of us that it took our breath away. And there was a couple from Virden that had it all over the Bartletts like a hot iron.

"Talk about any of us winning the twin beds!" I said, as we were starting off the third day. "We'll be lucky if we're mentioned in the also-rans."
"Oh, is that so?" said Will and Bob together. They're both natural born fighters and my remark was like saying rats to a couple of dogs. From that moment our practice began being a grim business.

Two hours a day wasn't half enough. It took us fifteen minutes to get out to the club and another fifteen to get back. Will didn't feel he could leave the office before five and though it was light till after eight, if we stayed as late as we could it meant not getting the child ren to bed till nine o'clock. Jack's a nervous little fellow and my baby books says a nervous child must have plenty of sleep.

Leaving the twins at Mother's was not clear gain either. At home I let them play all day in their overalls, but Mother's next-door neighbor is a very fussy woman and Mother wanted her grandchildren to look a credit to her. I found that that meant practically a clean dress and suit a day, which more than doubled my washing and mending. Then too, Mother spoilt them so during the time she had them they were twice as hard to take care of the rest of the time.

Taking care of children is much harder when you are tired yourself; and I found that I was tired most of the time; you can't add two hours a day on the golf course in hot weather on top of your regular house work without noticing it. Will didn't help me as much as usual either. Leaving the office early at night he felt that he had to rush back at noon, which meant he couldn't help me with the dinner dishes as he used to do. He didn't wipe the supper dishes, because the lawn was getting ahead of him.

And every spare second we had, day or night, he wanted to spend picnicking with one club or another. My understandable remark about the alsorans had done it. Will was determined we should win the prize. And when Will gets an idea like that, his judgment leaves him entirely. Of course I wanted to win the twin beds too; but Will irritated me just the same appearing to think I could sleep with one hand while I practised mash to shots with another.

I certainly was doing my best. After the twins were in bed and the supper dishes done, it was pitch dark, of course, and we would turn the river lights on one corner of the lawn and put till we were ready to drop.

The trouble with trying to play golf when you're tired is that you can't play your best and that makes you cross. The worse you play, the crosser it makes you; and the cross-er you are the worse you play. It's a vicious circle, and by the end of the third week both Will and I were running round it like quaterns.

And the trouble with playing partners when you are both cross is that you're very likely to blame your playing onto your partner. Whenever Will missed a putt he was sure to say I had talked or moved and made him miss. And though I asked him a million times not to stand and watch me when I was driving, it made me so nervous I would flush every time—he would forget and do it.

The fourth week was worse than the third because, the tournament being much nearer, the situation was becoming more tense.

The fifth week was awful.

The one consolation was that, in spite of the fact that we were not doing as well as they were the week was just as hard on the Carstairs.
We all came home together Saturday evening, Helen and I in the rumble seat. The boys were talking about their playing. As though they were wondering themselves! Helen held up her hand and let me see how it was shaking.

If Bob tells me once more to take long breaths and get hold of myself I'll tell Helen in a voice that shook as much as her head, "I shall go stark, staring crazy. He seems to think I'm being nervous for my own selfish pleasure. It is all his fault that I'm nervous at all. I wouldn't say this to anybody but you Dot but Bob is terribly selfish. He simply won't be careful about Hetty."

Hetty was the maid the Carstairs and brought from Chicago.
"Hetty is simply wonderful," Helen went on. "I'd never get another girl like her. And he knows that unexpected company for meals is the one thing she can't stand. Yet without the slightest consideration for me, he brought a man from the office home this noon. It wouldn't have taken him two minutes to phone first, but did he do it? Oh no. He forgot! Hetty's been awful about it all the afternoon."

And yet Bob expects me to be perfectly calm now. Why, for all I know Hetty may be planning on leaving this very minute. It wouldn't have taken him two minutes to telephone!
Telling me to take long breaths and get hold of myself."

THE MAN WHO PAYS

The will to pay is hereditary just as much as red hair or buck teeth.
It is a common fallacy that a man pays his debts because he has money.
That is not necessarily true. On the contrary the matter of paying has only a remote relation to money.

On the other hand is your friend with abundance of money, who cannot be cajoled, threatened, beaten or gassed into paying the most ordinary debts.

On the other hand the poor fellow without a visible dollar—you know him—who is Johnny on the invoice.
Money has little to do with either case. It is the breed of the man.

The man who pays is the man who thinks in advance. He never flashes a roll; he does not drive a car and carry a mortgage at the same time; he does not hang up the butcher or the grocer for food that he cannot afford to eat; he never lights the fire without wondering where the coal gets off. He never throws the bull, nor pitches the bluff, nor gives notes, nor writes checks dated tomorrow, but when the bills come in he is there with the coin of the realm, God bless him.

Sometimes he feels sore at the rest of us. He does not see that he gets on any better than the fellow who skims as he goes. Still he goes on and on, and pays and pays, simply because it is in the breed.

And after all, the world does think a lot of his breed. The man who pays is the bulwark of Society. He is the balance wheel of civilization. He is the mainspring of commerce. Business blesses him, and he has honor among men for all time—Exchange

Will He Pass The Test?

There is a simple test that is used to test the sharpness of eyesight. Defective eyes may not pass it unless aided by the proper glasses. Only a thorough examination can disclose the true condition of the eyesight.
Children are constantly facing tests and examinations. If they can see clearly and if their eyes are free from strain they will pass more easily. Seeing and understanding are closely related. Regular eye examinations will help to insure your child's progress.
